COMMENTARY

During August, most equity markets around the globe were down 4 to 5%. After the markets rallied in July, sobering language from central bankers pushed the markets into negative territory again. Citadel was down 3.4% in August, and -3.8% year-to-date. The MSCI World index (in €) is -7.0% lower year-to-date. Since inception Citadel's return has been +125.5%.

Citadel's strongest performance contributor in August was TGS (seismic data vendor), following a strong set of quarterly results of the company and its broader peer group. Pronexus (investor relations and governance services) published solid quarterly results for its seasonally most important quarter. However, without fundamental reasons as far as we can see, a drop of its share price made it the Fund's largest detractor this month.

Citadel's deep value investment strategy is designed to provide peace-of-mind in turbulent times. Obviously, several challenging macro-economic risks are slowly but surely materialising. With the margin-of-safety thought at its core, we believe investors can navigate choppy markets with Citadel's current portfolio of solid, low-risk companies, trading at a very low valuation (10% weighted free cash flow yield).

At the same time, Citadel intends to benefit from the opportunities that these volatile markets provide. This requires a disciplined approach, fully focussed on valuations and long-term company prospects. Due to recent selling of fully valued stakes and new subscriptions, the Fund has cash to strike when opportunities present themselves. This will sow the seeds for future performance.
